our mission AND PURPOSE

Stars Foundation's mission is to support and enable Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls and young women to make active choices towards realising their full potential in all aspects of their development and wellbeing. Our purpose is to improve health and education outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women.

Since 2015, Stars Foundation has been providing evidence-based, full-time mentoring support programs for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls and young women at risk of disengagement from school.

During 2018, we operated programs in 13 secondary schools in the Northern Territory and Queensland. In late 2018, we began operating programs at two secondary schools in Mildura, Victoria.

Stars Foundation was founded to ensure that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls and young women have access to the same level of support as boys and young men. Educational engagement programs, primarily using sport as a vehicle, have been shown to be effective in engaging Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander boys, with some good outcomes in attendance and engagement.

Stars has adapted what has been shown to work for boys into a program tailored to address the specific needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls. Over the past three years we have seen some outstanding outcomes across our programs.

what we do and WHY WE DO IT

- Health, education and employment outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people lag significantly behind those of non-Indigenous Australians. In a prosperous country like Australia, this is unacceptable.

Despite a small amount of progress having been made since the Closing the Gap strategy was launched in 2008, it is now clear that most of the targets are not on track to be met.

Evidence shows that good education lays the foundation for success in life and achieving a higher level of education is one of the factors most likely to reduce Indigenous disadvantage in Australia.

According to the Productivity Commission's Overcoming Indigenous Disadvantage: Key Indicators 2016 report, students who complete Year 12 are more likely to go on to further education and training, have better employment options, and have improved economic and social wellbeing.

People with a skilled vocational or higher qualification are more likely to be employed than those without, and being employed directly improves social and economic wellbeing, and contributes to improved outcomes for individuals, families and communities.

Stars Foundation is proud to say that our program is actively contributing to closing the gap on important outcomes, including school attendance, Year 12 completion and successful transitions from secondary school into employment or further education.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Data from the 2018 school year show that Stars students are attending school at a significantly higher rate than Indigenous students not taking part in the program.

Across all Northern Territory and Queensland programs, the girls and young women participating in our programs achieved an average attendance rate of 80 per cent.

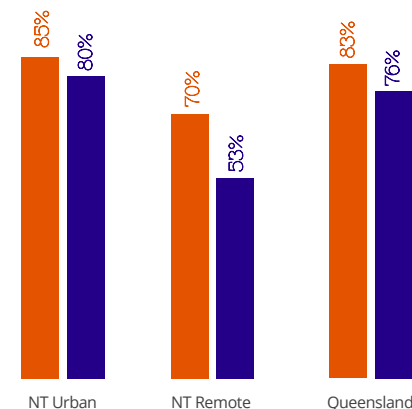

In our NT urban programs (Darwin), we achieved an average school attendance rate of 85 per cent. All our Darwin programs achieved an average school attendance rate above 80 per cent.

In our NT remote programs, we achieved an average school attendance rate of 70 per cent. When compared to average Indigenous attendance of 53 per cent across the same cohort, it is clear that our programs are making a difference in increasing school engagement in the schools in which we operate.

In our three new Queensland programs, we achieved an average attendance rate of 83 per cent. In each of our partner schools, the average attendance rate of the girls and young women in our programs were higher than the whole school average attendance rate. This was an outstanding result in our first full year of operation in Queensland.

YEAR 12 COMPLETION

Stars supports Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women to remain at school and complete Year 12. In 2018, we are proud to say that 97 per cent of our senior Stars completed Year 12.

In our Northern Territory programs, 96 per cent of young women enrolled in Year 12 completed it (50 of 52 young women). This compares very positively to the Northern Territory average Indigenous Year 12 completion rate of 39.1 per cent in 2016 (Closing the Gap Report 2018).

In our Queensland programs, 98 per cent of young women enrolled in Year 12 Stars completed it (40 of 41 young women).

This very high rate of Year 12 completion across our programs is a significant achievement, particularly when you consider the national overall rate of Year 12 completion for Indigenous people was as low as 65 per cent in 2016. The national completion rate in very remote areas, where many of our programs operate, is even lower at just 43 per cent (Closing the Gap Report 2019).

TRANSITION TO EMPLOYMENT OR FURTHER STUDY

At the end of 2018, more than 90 per cent of our 2016 and 2017 Year 12 graduates remained in employment, further training or study.

chair's REPORT

I am proud to be a Board Member and Acting Chair of Stars Foundation, an organisation that is making a tangible difference in the lives of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls and young women in programs across Australia.

As has been acknowledged around the world in recent years, the education of girls is the key to tackling poverty and disadvantage. Educating girls gives them the freedom to make decisions to improve their own lives, which we know has much wider social implications.

Better educated women tend to be healthier, take a more active role in the labour market, have fewer children and marry later, and provide better health care and education for their own children. An education is not only good for the girls themselves, but also for their families and for society more generally.

Stars Foundation goes beyond simply getting girls into school and keeping them there until they complete Year 12, as critical as this is. Stars also supports Indigenous girls and young women to identify and achieve their goals, learn the social and emotional skills they need to take care of themselves and their families, and move successfully into the world of work or further training.

During 2018, we achieved outstanding outcomes across all Stars programs in the Northern Territory and Queensland. A Year 12 completion rate of 97 per cent is extraordinary, especially when you consider that the national rate of Year 12 completion for Indigenous people was just 65 per cent in 2016 (Census 2016), and just 47 per cent in remote areas (where many of our programs are based).

School attendance rates improved from baseline in all our program locations and our graduates are making successful transitions from school into work or further study. Stars is proud to be contributing to closing the gap in outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women.

I would like to acknowledge the significant contribution of Stars' Founding Chair, Marion Scrymgour, during our first three years. Early in 2018, Marion flagged her intention to resign from the Stars Board due to changing personal circumstances. In her time as Chair, Marion showed an unwavering commitment to ensuring that Stars Foundation grew into a strong organisation that would continue to thrive into the future. Recognising that important milestones had been reached and as part of its commitment to ongoing review and renewal, the Board took this opportunity to undertake an external Board review to identify best practice for the future.

I thank other founding Directors, David Peever and Sue Beecher, for their commitment and contribution to making Stars a strong, sustainable organisation. I also wish to express my gratitude to my fellow Board members, all of whom volunteer their time and considerable expertise to supporting the growth and sustainability of Stars Foundation. We are truly blessed to have such a talented and experienced Board providing the highest level of governance to the organisation.

My thanks also to our Founder and CEO, Andrea Goddard, whose clear vision, determination and hard work have seen Stars Foundation grow from a small organisation providing programs in several schools in the Northern Territory to a thriving organisation providing programs to around 1000 girls in schools across the Northern Territory, Queensland and Victoria. Andrea's leadership continues to inspire as she builds the organisation's capacity to support even more Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls into the future.

The high quality and commitment of our staff has helped Stars forge a reputation for excellence, which is recognised by First Nations leaders and local communities, as well as by Federal, State and Territory governments. I thank them for believing in our program and investing in its continued operation and expansion. I would also like to thank the many corporate, philanthropic and individual donors and partners who contribute so generously to supporting us in our work.

Although we are achieving fantastic outcomes, there is still much more to be done. Stars has a strong leadership team and an amazing staff cohort with the capacity to deliver outstanding programs to many more Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls and young women around Australia.

Our ongoing efforts to build upon the existing support we receive from governments, corporates and philanthropic organisations will ensure that many more Indigenous girls and young women are well-educated and empowered to create change in their own families and communities.

ceo REPORT

2018 was another stellar year for Stars Foundation. A year in which we achieved excellent outcomes across all programs in the Northern Territory and Queensland.

School attendance rates improved from baseline across all program locations and our students achieved an outstanding Year 12 completion rate of 97 per cent. We have also had great success with graduates transitioning from Year 12 successfully, with over 90 per cent of our 2016 and 2017 graduates in employment or further study.

These exceptional outcomes were achieved in the context of significant growth. In the past three years, Stars Foundation has tripled in size and we doubled our student numbers in 2018. We also commenced two new programs in northern Victoria towards the end of the year.

None of this could have been achieved without the many amazing people working with and supporting our organisation.

Stars has earned a reputation for excellence, due largely to the high quality of our staff. I am enormously proud of their dedication and commitment. The work they do presents daily challenges, yet each and every one of them remains absolutely committed to achieving the best possible outcomes for our students.

We know that we are privileged to be able to support the amazing young women in our programs and we do not take this responsibility lightly.

As I visit our programs across the country, I always take the opportunity to listen to our young women speak about their experiences of the program. I never fail to be struck by the number of times I hear young women say that the Stars Room - their safe space - feels like a home away from home.

The power of a positive relationship with a trusted adult outside the family circle in a young person's life is well established. Stars Mentors are these trusted adults in our young women's lives - they believe in them, have their best interests at heart, and are there to encourage, guide and inspire them. They are exemplary role models for our Stars.

The Stars 'family' is broader than our Mentors, though. It's a bit like the 'village' it takes to raise a child. The Stars village is connected, engaged and supportive. Our many corporate, philanthropic and individual donors and partners, who contribute so generously to support our work, enrich and strengthen the Stars family.

Our Indigenous-led Board is made up of the highest calibre Indigenous and business leaders and I thank them for their support and their dedicated contribution to the growth and sustainability of the organisation.

Throughout 2018 we celebrated the NAIDOC theme of 'Because of Her, We Can'. This presented many opportunities for our Stars to acknowledge the many strong and wonderful women in their lives - Mums, Nannas, Sisters, Aunties and other significant women, including their Stars Mentors.

We are surrounded by inspiration and see it every day in the efforts of our girls and young women, who are achieving success, often amidst significant challenges. With the support of the Stars team, and all who support the Foundation, we can continue to achieve our purpose of empowering Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women to develop the confidence and skills they need to make active choices about their own futures.

The quality of our outcomes is widely recognised by First Nations leaders and local communities, as well as by governments. We thank them for their belief in our program and for continuing to support our growth.

Thank you to the many individuals and organisations who contribute so generously to our work. You are amazing and you truly are making a difference.

Stars Foundation is a highly professional organisation. We pride ourselves on attracting and retaining the best possible staff. We cultivate a high-expectations culture and know that we exist for one reason – to offer our very best to the girls and young women we support.

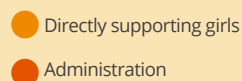

Stars promotes a learning and personal development culture that builds staff capacity, provides career pathways, and encourages trust and cohesion among our staff. We are proud that 62 per cent of our staff are Indigenous and 93 per cent work in program roles that directly support our young women.

We put significant effort into retaining our staff, which can be very challenging both within the community development sector and in many of the northern Australian areas in which we operate. Our staff turnover rate for 2018 was just 4 per cent and staff movement was related to family or personal relocation.

the Stars PLAN

The Stars program is based on research in education and public health that shows how crucial the experiences of early adolescence are in promoting engagement with learning and enhancing personal wellbeing

Genuine engagement is critical in producing positive outcomes across a range of immediate and long-term health, academic and life indicators.

The Stars program is underpinned by the Stars Plan, which focuses on four key areas of personal development:

- Education, Training and Employment
- Healthy Lifestyles
- Wellbeing
- Community, Culture and Leadership

These four pillars are fundamental to building genuine, culturally appropriate engagement, and supporting our young women to make active choices to reach their full potential.

The key to the success of the program are our full-time, on-site Mentors, who provide our young women with the intensive, daily support they need to identify and achieve their goals.

Each Stars student works closely with her Mentor to develop a holistic individual plan to help her move positively toward making active choices about her own future.

Every week our programs provide engaging activities based on the four pillars. We employ a strengths-based approach with the girls, which is designed to build on their individual abilities, interests and strengths.

The Stars values of Respect, Honesty, Commitment and Pride underpin everything we do.

“Stars Foundation has formed an integral and vital link within our Student Support Framework. Their presence, programs and positive influence engaging Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls within our community has been incredible.”

- HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION TEACHER,
THURINGOWA STATE HIGH SCHOOL

“I have been in the field of philanthropy for 16 years. During that time, I have seen and supported many superb projects. I have never seen a better, more strategic, more cost-effective project than this one in Australia or in the rest of the world”

education, training AND EMPLOYMENT

The Education, Training and Employment pillar of the Stars Plan focuses on supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women to remain engaged in their education and develop positive plans for a successful transition into employment or further education.

Our Stars Mentors arrange and coordinate workplace visits, workshops, guest speakers and university visits to provide our young women with exposure to a wide range of employment and education options. Future pathways are an integral component of this pillar of the Stars Plan.

Senior Stars are also supported by our Transitions Managers, who help them prepare for life after graduating from secondary school. Support from our Transitions Managers continues after Year 12 so that our graduates can overcome any barriers and successfully transition from school to employment or further education.

We have had the privilege of employing Stars Foundation Graduates and hosting student visits to our organisation. I would like to express how impressed we have been with not only the young ladies who visit our organisation but importantly the young ladies who we have employed in Traineeship positions. I would also like to commend the Stars Foundation staff ... who maintain regular contact with both Menzies and the Stars graduates who are employed here with us. Their best interests and wellbeing are at the core of your work. We look forward to our ongoing relationship with the Stars Foundation in offering career pathways for our young Aboriginal women future leaders.”

[It] has been invaluable to have [Stars] supporting a great number of young women in the Pathways and VET area. Many work experience placements would have either not happened, or been so successful, had it not been for the support Stars provided. The Stars room is a safe and supportive space where I have seen students open-up about barriers to future pathways ... I have watched on as students have developed confidence with the encouragement of Stars Mentors. Without this support many an opportunity for young women to take chances and thrive could be missed.”

- VET COORDINATOR, TENNANT CREEK HIGH SCHOOL

healthy LIFESTYLES

The Healthy Lifestyles pillar of the Stars Plan focuses on supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander girls and young women to develop healthy habits for life. Activities under this pillar centre around sport and physical activities, dance, nutrition and health.

All Stars programs featured a healthy diet and cooking program focusing on the benefits of a low-sugar diet. Throughout the year, regular early morning training sessions were followed by a healthy breakfast. A variety of activities take place each week, including basketball, dance, bootcamp, touch football, boxing and fitness. The Stars students across all programs have been involved in many different sporting activities after school and in community competitions.

Shining Star

In Year 11, my attendance at school was pretty bad. I wasn't interested and didn't care, so I wagged a lot and just stayed at home. Stars started at my school at the beginning of my Year 12, so I went into the room to check it out. The Mentors were really inviting and approachable; they were so kind and encouraging.

Once I signed up with Stars, I started to go to school regularly, which had a big impact on my learning and my grades. I had been missing a lot of school, so there were gaps in my learning and confidence. Stars encouraged me and believed in me. One of the things that really helped was working with my Mentors to fill out the Stars Plan, where they help you identify your strengths and interests, then figure out your goals and how you are going to achieve them. This made me see clearly that I needed to be at school, and I had to start focusing.

If it wasn't for Stars, there's no way I would have accomplished as much as I have so far with my education. I did well in Year 12 and even got into university to study Nursing. I'm so grateful to Stars for all they've done for me. It's great that there's a program that specifically targets young Indigenous women like me and shows them the positive pathways they can take, instead of the expected pathways, like dropping out of school and getting involved in drugs and alcohol and other bad things.

wellbeing

The Wellbeing pillar of the Stars Plan focuses on supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women to take care of their personal wellbeing and mental health.

Wellbeing activities focus on nurturing social and emotional development, with a strong emphasis on developing respectful relationships.

Our programs also focus on bullying, cyber-bullying and safe social media practices. Personal grooming and health are other areas of importance across the programs. Yoga, mindfulness and a range of team-building workshops are also popular with our young women.

Shining Star

"I would like to take a moment to acknowledge the efforts of my Stars Mentors as I would not be in this position today without them.

K has consistently come into the Stars Room with a smile on her face and has brought an endless amount of positive energy to us students. K is a role model for all of us girls as a successful, kind, and especially caring Indigenous woman who we can all look up to as a figure of inspiration in our lives. Some of my most memorable memories from this year have been the direct result of her hard work, including the opportunity to attend an Indigenous camp at the University of Melbourne and attending a Law Boot Camp with the NAAJA lawyer's office and Charles Darwin University. Without K, these doors may have never been opened to me.

To L, who has never given up on us despite all the complaining that I know I have personally verbalised to her, she has always gone out of her way to assist us in anything that we may be struggling with ... L has been an empathetic, extraordinary and unfaltering figure over the past couple of years, and her abundance of positivity has been an important factor to the completion of our high school careers.

To Ke, who has put an immeasurable amount of effort into all of us in the Stars program and has always brought joy and happiness to everyone around her. She is a remarkable Mentor and an exceptionally important role model in my life."

The relationships the Stars staff have with the students is learning-focused and personalised. They constantly support the students to see the best in themselves, strive towards their goals, and show pride when these are achieved - and often exceeded."

community, culture AND LEADERSHIP

The Community, Culture and Leadership pillar of the Stars Plan focuses on supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young women to celebrate their culture, be active within their communities, and develop leadership skills.

Stars students have been involved in a large range of community activities, including NAIDOC and Harmony Day celebrations, community barbeques and events. We regularly invite Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Elders to share their stories and inspire our young women to be the leaders of their own lives.

Our Stars are also given opportunities to engage in volunteer work as a way of giving back to their communities. The Stars Presentation Nights are a highlight of every year, as are the end of year trips for senior students.

Stars has been an integral support in assisting the students to complete their Duke of Edinburgh Award. The Stars girls who were in the Dukes program already displayed amazing leadership, respect, initiative and gratitude, which was outstanding in comparison to their peers of the same age. I believe the Stars program has fostered the growth of these values in these young women throughout the completion of their education at Sanderson.”

Notes to the Financial Statements

FOR THE PERIOD ENDED 31 DECEMBER 2018

The financial statements cover Stars Foundation Limited as an individual entity, incorporated and domiciled in Australia. Stars Foundation Limited is a company limited by guarantee.

The financial statements were authorised for issue on 04 April 2019 by the Directors of the company.

Note 1: Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

The Directors have prepared the financial statements on the basis that the company is a non-reporting entity because there are no users who are dependent on its general purpose financial statements. These financial statements are therefore special purpose financial statements that have been prepared to meet the requirements of section 60.40 of the Australian Charities and Not-For-Profit Commission Regulation 2013 (ACNC Regulation). The company is a not-for-profit entity for financial reporting purposes under Australian Accounting Standards.

The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with the mandatory Australian Accounting Standards applicable to entities reporting under the Australian Charities and Not-For Profit Commission Act 2012 (ACNC-Act) and the significant accounting policies disclosed below, which the Directors have determined are appropriate to meet the needs of members.

The financial statements, except for the cash flow information, have been prepared on an accruals basis and are based on historical costs unless otherwise stated in the notes. Material accounting policies adopted in the preparation of these financial statements are presented below and have been consistently applied unless stated otherwise. The amounts presented in the financial statements have been rounded to the nearest dollar.

Accounting Policies

a. Revenue

Revenue is recognised and measured at the fair value of the consideration received or receivable to the extent it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the company and the revenue can be reliably measured. The following specific criteria must also be met before revenue is recognised.

Grant Funding

Revenue from government grants is recognised when the company obtains control or the right to receive the contribution and when there is sufficient assurance that the company will comply with the conditions attached to them.

Donations

Donations and bequests are recognised as revenue when received.

Interest

Interest revenue is recognised as it accrues using the effective interest method, which for floating rate financial assets is the rate inherent in the instrument.

All revenue is stated net of the amount of goods and services tax.

b. Leases

Lease payments for operating leases, where substantially all the risks and benefits remain with the lessor, are charged as expenses on a straight-line basis over the lease term.

c. Cash and Cash Equivalents

Cash and Cash Equivalents includes cash on hand and deposits held at-call with banks.

d. Accounts receivable

Accounts receivable and other debtors include amounts due from donors and any outstanding grant receipts. Receivables expected to be collected within 12 months of the end of the reporting period are classified as current assets. All other receivables are classified as non-current assets.

e. Goods and Services Tax (GST)

Revenues and expenses are recognised net of the amount of GST, except where the amount of GST incurred is not recoverable from the Australian Taxation Office (ATO).

Receivables and payables are stated inclusive of the amount of GST receivable or payable. The net amount of GST recoverable from, or payable to, the ATO is included with other receivables or payables in the statement of financial position.

Cash flows are presented on a gross basis. The GST components of cash flows arising from investing or financing activities which are receivable from, or payable to, the ATO are presented as operating cash flows included in receipts from customers or payments to suppliers.

f. Income Tax

No provision for income tax has been raised as the entity is exempt from income tax under Div 50 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997.

g. Employee Benefits

Provision is made for the liability for employee benefits arising from services rendered by the employees to the end of the reporting period. Employee benefits that are expected to be settled within one year have been measured at the amounts expected to be paid when the liability is settled. Employee benefits payable later than one year have been measured at the present value of the estimated cash outflows to be made for those benefits. In determining the liability, consideration is given to employee wage increases and the probability that the employee may not satisfy vesting requirements. Those cash outflows are discounted using market yields on corporate bond rates with terms to maturity that match the expected timing of cash flows attributable to employee benefits.

h. Accounts payable and other payables

Trade and other payables represent the liability outstanding at the end of the reporting period for goods and services received by the company during the reporting period which remain unpaid. The balance is recognised as a current liability with the amount being normally paid within 30 days of recognition of the liability.

i. Critical accounting estimates and judgements

The Directors evaluate estimates and judgements incorporated into the financial statements based on historical knowledge and best available current information. Estimates assume a reasonable expectation of future events and are based on current trends and economic data, obtained both externally and within the company.

j. Economic Dependence

Stars Foundation Limited is dependent on various State Departments of Education and the Federal Government for the majority of its revenue used to operate the business. At the date of this report the Board of Directors has no reason to believe that these government bodies will not continue to support Stars Foundation Limited in the future.
